You may lodge your order in the following ways:

EMAIL: orders@rossroses.com.au

We acknowledge all new orders received before July.

ADDITIONS: You may add to your original order, but these are not necessarily acknowledged. Large additions late in the season may have to be treated as a separate order.

Always mention that you have already placed an order, to avoid a split consignment.

SIZE AND QUALITY: As our rose selection is so diverse, from moderns through to the rare and old-fashioned, the saleable size of certain varieties will naturally vary. For this very reason, many roses listed in this catalogue are generally not available through other nurseries. Be assured, we choose only the best sized plants available of each variety for inclusion in your order.

PRICE: Our pricing relates to the rarity and degree of difficulty to produce rather than the size of any given plant.

SHORTAGES: We grow our plants at our own nursery whenever possible. Should there be a shortfall of our expected numbers such as from adverse growing conditions, you can be assured that the available plants will be allocated strictly in the sequence in which orders have been received.

SUBSTITUTES: We do not substitute unless you request it. Help us to help you when we are required to substitute. List some alternative names, or explain your preferred colour, size or effect that you want to achieve.

GUARANTEE: We believe that our plants are fresh, healthy and correctly named when sent out. If a plant turns out to be obviously incorrectly labelled, we will replace it without any charge the next season. As roses are perishable plants, and can be affected in many ways once they leave our care, we cannot automatically accept responsibility for losses. However if problems arise contact our office as soon as possible for we may be able to advise ways in which to help.
